General Bragg will soon say of Cleveland, "we hate him for the friends he has made."

There is a little promise of spring just at present, and the weather prophets predict a warm May.

The European war cloud appears to be timorous piece of material. It doesn't hang over very long.

The Illinois legislature did one good thing this session. It packed its grip-sacks and got out of the state.

A fire occurred at Stevens Point on Sunday, which destroyed five million feet of lumber, incurring a loss of over $80,000.

The Rev. Mr. Burchard, R. R. R., has preached his farewell sermon and has retired to private life. It is a pity that he did not preach it seven months ago.

Jeffersonian simplicity is carrying the day at the white house with a vengeance. Mr. Cleveland has bought the most expensive set of harness that ever covered the horses that draw the presidential carriage.

The secretary of the treasury has made another monthly statement of the financial condition of the government which shows, as usual, that there is a cash surplus of $28,000,000. Will Mr. Hendricks or Mr. Randall, rise and tell where the "40,000,000 surplus" has gone to since the democrats came into power?

Governor Russ has appointed the following gentlemen to the State board of dentistry: For five years—C. C. Chatenden, Madison; four years—B. G. Merlele, Milwaukee; three years—Edgar Palmer, La Crosse; two years—J. S. Reynolds, Monroe; one year—E. C. French, Eau Claire.

The following is a statement of the coinage executed at the mints of the United States, during the month of April, 1885:

Denomination.	Pieces.	Value.
Double eagles.	61,000	$1,220,000
Eagles.	4,700	94,000
Half-eagles.	17,200	357,000
Total gold.	17,200	1,061,000
Standard dollars.	2,000,000	2,000,000
Dimes.	2,000,000	200,000
Total silver.	2,000,000	2,482,000
Total coinage.	2,000,000	4,423,000

The following is a statement of the coinage executed at the mints of the United States, during the month of April, 1885:

General Bragg has met with another gallant defeat in his desire to dispense the federal patronage in Wisconsin. In the Watertown case, he made a desperate effort to secure the appointment of Charles H. Gardner as postmaster. Gardner is not only a democrat, but during the war he quit his home at Watertown, went south, joined the confederate army, fought against the Union until the surrender of the rebels, then returned home and now seeks an office at the hands of the government which he fought to destroy. It requires a good deal of gall on the part of Bragg to press the claim of a confederate soldier for an important public office, especially when Watertown has a large number of prominent and worthy democrats who were loyal during the war and are entitled to the support and the confidence of their fellow citizens.

Colonel Vilas is credited with saying that he shall never consent to the appointment of an ex-confederate to an office in Wisconsin; and therefore he favored and urged the appointment of Henry P. Howell, who is an old resident of Watertown, and prominent local leader of the democracy, a splendid business man, and a democrat of the old school, although loyal during the war. The president, on Saturday settled the matter in favor of Mr. Howell, thus striking Bragg another severe blow between the eyes. General Bragg will soon learn that he has not much influence with the present administration.

A system of curing cholera, like that of small pox, has been adopted in Spain. A number of people of Valencia are being inoculated with cholera virus, which produces tremors and prostration for hours. At the end of forty-eight hours the patient is well. All the provinces of Spain have sent doctors to study the system, which is believed to be a great success. So far it has proved to be a sure cure.

Kansas has been long noted for its precocity as a state—it's great school houses, big corn cribs, extensive railroads, and the like, but it has two boys that are wonderful for business precocity. For the past two years the two sons of L. M. Crawford, a theatrical manager of Topeka, have had charge of all the details of his business. They are now but sixteen and fourteen years of age respectively, and are each on the road with a large theatrical troupe, of which they have the sole management.

There are threatened hostilities between the governors of Illinois and Missouri. Governor Oglesby's recent proclamation quarantining his state against Missouri cattle, owing to the alleged existence of pleuro-pneumonia in the latter state, is the caveat bellum. Governor Marmaduke insists that there is no infectious disease among the cattle of Missouri, and asks Governor Oglesby to revoke his proclamation. "I know the condition of pleuro-pneumonia in this state better than you do," declares Marmaduke to Oglesby, and adds, "you have been grossly misinformed." Governor Oglesby had but a contest with Marmaduke in the uprightness of twenty-three years ago, and was not afraid of him then, and is not afraid of him now. So the fighting general and sturdy governor has not revoked his proclamation, and with his compliments to the governor of Missouri, he sends the amendment once transmitted from the governor of Arkansas to the governor of Alabama.

The other day United States Senator Eustis, of Louisiana, requested the New Orleans States newspaper to say in its editorial columns: "You can say for me, and you cannot put it too strongly, that in my judgment Mr. Cleveland thus far, from a democratic standpoint, has been a conspicuous and humiliating failure." Mr. Eustis is one of those men who will be satisfied with nothing less than a coronation for a president. He is an ultra-democrat, of course, and has a large following, but a great many democrats who think as much as he does, have not the boldness to publicly say what they think. Mr. Eustis, also, said in his democratic organ:

"The whole truth of the matter is that Mr. Cleveland is totally lacking in information respecting the condition of affairs in the South and West, and in relying entirely on the favorite advice of a couple of Mugwump papers in New York city, who are just as ignorant as he is regarding these important sections. It is now no longer a matter of distribution of offices and government patronage, but a question of party principle, and the democratic element will see to it that this administration is democratic in the full significance of the term or that Mr. Cleveland and his cabinet shall fall and be buried beneath the ruins they have made."

When one reads the opinions of democrats on their own administration, especially the opinions of the old-line democrats, he is in a frame of mind to read "Sunset" Cox's book "Why We Laugh," and richly enjoy it.

It is not surprising that the settlers on that part of the so-called Crow Creek and Winona-Bago reservation, in Dakota, which was opened to settlement on February 27 by President Arthur, are pro-

BEECHER ON THEOLOGY.

THE PLYMOUTH ORACLE DISCUSSES THE PITH OF CHRISTIANITY,

Will to Accept the Trinity, But Cannot Give Definitions—A Characteristic Discourse.

BROOKLYN, May 4.—Mr. Beecher's sermon Sunday was suggested by the first chapter of Revelations: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord; the first and the last. I am He that liveth and was dead and have the keys of hell and of death."

After mentioning that Revelations was written in Greek, Beecher said the book was good to be used in spite of the fact that men could not understand it as a general rule.

Mr. Beecher said the book was good to be used in spite of the fact that we use poetry. The text illustrated the many-sidedness of the Savior. Mr. Beecher continued:

"It is a surprise to me that he, of whom it is said that his words and deeds were recorded, the world could not contain the books, should not have left one word as it was originally uttered. The fragile memory of those who conversed with him is the only source from which we derive the group of sayings which we call the sayings of Jesus. Jesus, the Master, taught the others of the German school of destructive criticism in throwing out John and other portions of the gospel so that the real Christ of the gospel may not touch the real Christ of the gospel and you may eradicate every miracle and you don't materially destroy the life of gospel."

"What a miracle was not a miracle? What makes a difference in your theory of inspiration, but what does it make in the grandeur of the real truth?"

On the first day of the church Christians looked for Christ's immediate reappearances. Afterward many minds began to work upon the nature of the Godhead. Christ's place in it was not clear.

"What is the place of Christ? How can we get the qualities of divinity? We don't know enough about God, and the question of Christ's divinity is not half so important;

"I believe lovingly in it, that He is such a presentation of divine nature, that I may pray to and worship it, and put my soul's confidence in it, and I feel obliged for me—that is what I want of a god. But when you come to theologize, then there must be more certain definitions, and in arguing that question what a world of grace has been lost."

"As a Christian, I find no difficulty in it. I accept the doctrine, if you don't object to me doing it. But when you appoint the judicial circuits and say: 'The Father has this function, the Son that and the Holy Spirit that—I decline to enter into any such views. The fact is, our ideas are all derived from some experience of others, or our own, and we cannot understand God's nature, because there is a thousand times more of it than we have any opinions of in our experience."

"What is the place of Christ? How can we get the qualities of divinity—for though we can understand them, love, gentleness, justice—the divine qualities—for though we have God's commentary of what He is and His purpose in this world,

"The soul naturally loves on Christ truly,

"But theology says: 'What is the nature of the atomium?' This is philosophy. I don't say it is barbarous, but do not confound it with that view of Christ which it which works in us and lifts us to His sphere."

The Christ of theology may help some men, but I have an impression that his is not a thousandfold more. That would change all the world. What is the way now and around the dominant element was fear. As Christianity sweetened life, theology became lighter and governments have followed the same analogy. Governments are milder and more beneficial just as their subjects grow in civilization. Barbarism and tyranny, semi-civilization and constitutional monarchy, morality and virtue and Republicanism.

"Nor should we make the blunder of supposing that religion and theology are the same. Man may change his creed and keep his religion, but may not change his soul and body."

But though the Christ of theology changes the Christ of our personal experience changes only to grow more luminous, more attractive."
